Ladies' and Girls' Ready-to-Wear Garments.

What is Generally Accepted As Correct

Gray, in all its shades, has by universal acceptance been proclaimed the king of colors for Autumn 1905. The most reliable fashion delineators hinted some time ago that this would be the case, so we took the hint and turned our thoughts and endeavors toward bringing together a contrasting assortment of correctly and stylishly modeled suits in all the various shades of gray.

Every true woman's aim is to be stylishly dressed, and no woman can be considered stylishly dressed unless she is correctly dressed. In getting a suit here you are assured of the latter; therefore, further argument would be superfluous—our stock of suits being at once correct, stylish, and in every way first-class.

One graceful long coated model at $25.00 is composed of best quality homespun cloth in a stone gray shade. A model forming an ideal "all occasion" suit being serviceable, yet essentially dressy. Other long coated styles are made of novelty materials, cut upon mannish lines, and carry unique individuality with them, which make them distinct from all others.

Tailored Suits $12 to $75
Separate Skirts $5 to $25
Silk Waists - $5 to $35

Governor.

STATE'S MONEY
SQUANDERED.

Governor Hanly has done the right in removing from office the Auditor of the State, David E. Sherrick. The office was vacated on Sept. 14. The Governor forced his resignation.

At Hamilton Ind., on Tuesday of last week in an address at the reception of the Thirtieth Indiana regiment Governor Hanly made public his reason for his action, and his words were used to show what blame of the money belonging to the State that was lost by "David E. Sherlick, auditor of the State and common gambler." The Governor charged that $10,000 of the State's money went "by check into the hands of the gentleman who was then operating a Casino at French Lick. The Governor then enumerated a list of what he calls "wild cat" securities, aggregating a face value of $75,000 into which the State's money went.

Following, he charged that Sherrick's continued absence from the session of the State Board of Tax Commissioners was "occasioned by drinking bouts and midnight carousals around the gambling table from which he could not recover in time to meet the commission." He charged that Sherrick, at the time the Monon railroad came up for assessment, argued that the as-assessment be allowed to remain at $18,000 a mile, because, in that case, a friend of his, to whom he was under great obligation, personally, could get permanent employment with the company if the assessment could be kept at $18,000.

There is evidence, overwhelming and convincing, that Sherrick was a common gambler, and that he, at the time of his resignation, and had been for two years, in the habit of losing large sums of money, not his but yours, at the gaming table.

Certain people claim that gambling and an open door to vice are essential to the material prosperity of municipal communities. I do not think so, but you are jury. It is for you to decide.

"Before my inauguration, I received trustworthy information that he had written to the management of several railway companies in December, 1904, over his own signature as auditor of State asking them to send him all passes intended for members of the General Assembly then about to convene, stating in substance that he expected to have some legislation of personal interest to him before that body and if they send their transportation to him for distribution he would see that their interest and his were cared for at the same time.

REGINATION DEMANDED.

"On the evening of September 13 I was informed by one who had been aiding him and in whom I have confidence that he could not make payment on the 15th. I then sent him a verbal demand for his immediate resignation. It did not come, some of his friends did come and informed me that the money could be raised on conditions that the scandal be kept and he be retained in office.

"Upon inquiry I learned that some of the men who were to furnish the money were representatives of large railway interests in the State; that Sherrick and his friends were depending upon them, and that their assistance depended upon his retention in office. I could make no such bargain as that.

The Constitutional Amendment and What is Back of it

The people of Kentucky should be on their guard about the changes that will be asked for in the next few years regarding changes in our State constitution.

The new constitution put a stop to much expensive and dangerous class legislation and threw a safeguard of protection around and about the right of the people that they never enjoyed before.

It put a stop to rich and powerful corporations, by corruption and bribery, securing subsidies from from counties, districts and municipalities, thereby entailing debts upon the people that lasted for generations before they were paid, and many of them are yet unpaid.

The new constitution was a great improvement over the old one, in the equalization of taxation, but no longer had the equalization as one of the tax manipulators in the large cities thought the people had forgotten its provisions than they set in to bring about an amendment to the constitution to do away with a graduated system of taxation, the only equitable system known to man, and in its place establish the franchise system, which means to make the burden heavier on the ordinary taxpayer and lighten it on the corporation, so they will claim their earning power is not sufficient for them to be taxed but little.

This amendment was finally carried by a small majority at the regular election two years ago, and as a result the Legislature that is to meet this coming fall will be asked to increase the rate of taxation in order to meet the deficit caused by the application of this amendment.

The next step is to abolish the Australian ballots system and return to the old antiquated viva voce, or open ballot system, where intimidation, rowdiness and corruption can run riot at the polls.

If this amendment carries, then the next step will be to repeal that part of the constitution that now prevents counties, towns and districts from voting subsidies to railroads and others corporations, and which prevents the Legislature from spending its time in expensive class legislation. So it can be seen that there is a deep-laid scheme to annul and destroy the usefulness of the safest and best constitution the State of Kentucky ever had.

It certainly behooves the people to study this matter over between now and the election and inform themselves, so as not to be imposed upon.

It will be a dark day for Kentucky if this amendment carries and our elections are put under the control of the corporations dominated on election day by the very worst elements of the election bums. This is only another scheme to abridge the election franchise of the voter. —Mayfield Messenger Democrat

A GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Glover Have Trod the Paths of Life Together For Fifty Years Today— Took the Marriage Vows September 12, 1855.

Today, September 12th, is the golden wedding day, or fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Glover, West Division avenue, and Mrs. J. M. Hughes; Mrs. Harmon Hawkins, their niece, with other relatives, had planned to give them a genuine golden supper at the home of Mr. E. A. Lindsay, who is Mrs. Glover's brother, but were prevented from doing so by the untimely illness of Mr. Glover.

The house was already decorated in yellow and white flowers and drapery and everything was in readiness, when Mr. Glover was taken quite ill with flux which of course put a stop to it all. But the venerable couple, though debarred the social pleasure of meeting of their family and their chosen friends at the hospitable board of their brother, were very pious and cheerful. They were to have their "golden wedding" by a date a number of gifts of gold coin, which was presented them by their relatives as the most suitable remembrance on such a day.

On September 12th, 1855, Lindorf A. Glover and Mary M. Lindsay were married at Mount Sterling, Ky. A greater part of their lives was spent in Kentucky, but removed to Jackson about fifteen years since, and eight or ten years ago they bought property and built a home upon W. Division avenue, where they have since resided.

Mr. and Mrs. Glaver were the parents of eleven children, of whom only two, Robert and Miss Pickett, survive, both of whom are with them, and Mr. Glaver, who has never had to use glasses and is in perfect possession of all of his faculties, is as active as most men who are twenty years his junior, and his unfortunate attack yesterday is particularly deplorable, as he has been so long and so well in excellent health, and great pains to enjoy the golden wedding. Let us hope that Mr. Glaver's illness will be brief and that this auspicious anniversary will bring much happiness to both himself and wife and that both will live long to remember it.

Quite a number of cards announcing the celebration of their golden wedding were sent to old friends and relatives at a distance.

I do not know one good thing about the Saloom. It is an evil that has not one redeeming thing in all its history to commend it to good men. It breaks the law of God and man; it is a blot upon the Liberator's life; it defile public order; it tramples under foot the tenderest feelings of humanity; it prostrates the name of religion; it is a moral pestilence that blights the very atmosphere of purity; it comes upon progress, a check upon the noble impulses, it is an incentive to falsehood, deceit, and crime. From such a hateful lunatic head can there come any good thing that the saloom has ever done for humanity—one good thing—one instance in which it has brought forth fruits unto righteousness—one influence, sweet and good, that has been glorious and beautiful, which linger lovingly in the memory of men, when you have buried the rum power, to make them say: "God bless the saloom, for the good it did!" Search through all the pages of the Liberator, and read one page over which some mother can bow her grateful head and thank God for all the saloom did for her boy. There is no such record. All its history is written in blood and crime, and dark blots of dishonour.—Bob Burdett.

What we want is men and women who for the love of home and country will enter the struggle to win, and after carefully studying the plan of action, draw the sword and throw away the scabbard, determined only to cease the struggle when victory comes to bless our homes and country.—John B. Finch.

There is no possible question that business prosperity in any town rises as the saloons disappear. The money that is expended in the saloon is divided between the liquor manufacturers on the one hand and the saloon-keepers and middle men on the other. It does not go into the stock of wealth of the community, but is much destroyed, so far as the community is concerned, as though it were thrown into the fire. At the same time two-thirds even of the value of the ability of every man who visits saloons at all is lost through the weakness that comes from drink. When people become accustomed to clean towns without saloons, cesspools, pig pens, and dens of vice, they will not tolerate any of these evil influences afterward.—David Starr Jordan.

TRICK WITH ROPE LADDER.
Wholesale Hypnotism Explains Work of Ceylon Juggler in His Many "Stunts."

An American resident of Ceylon recently wrote home the following account of the famous rope ladder trick:

"We sat in the compound, solemn and silent, as the magician's wife demanded, for he was the greatest of Ceylonese jugglers."

"There was a burst of weird music, and the man appeared with a rope ladder coiled in his hand. He looked at us, and then, with a graceful, powerful movement, he threw the ladder up towards the blue, smoky sky."

"We all gasped."

"For the ladder stood erect in the air, its bottom a foot from the ground, and the top running up, up, up, till it was lost to view."

"We gasped. If this was not magic, what was it?"

"A boy appeared. He put his foot on the erect and floating ladder's bottom rung, and he began, very slowly, to climb up."

"I, up, he went. I counted a hundred rings, a hundred and twenty-five, a hundred and fifty. The boy became very small. I rubbed my eyes. The magician clasped his hands suddenly, the music burst into a wild strain—the boy and the ladder disappeared."

"They disappeared completely."

I didn't see them again till the next afternoon, when the same trick was repeated. I had a hand camera along this time, and I made a half dozen snaps of different parts of the ladder trick. These snaps came out well. They showed the magician, the orchestra, the compound. But they showed nothing—nothing whatever—of the ladder and the boy. Hence, it is plain that the famous eastern ladder trick is a remarkable piece of conjuring. There was no ladder, there was no boy. The magician had thrown us all into a trance, and made us imagine them."

TOD SLOAN AND THE KING

Monarch of Belgium Eats Potatoes Which Famous Jockey Had Discovered—His Object.

King Leopold of Belgium told a good story on himself and Tod Sloan some time ago which has found its way into the Paris newspapers.

"I was dining in a Paris restaurant," said the most democratic of kings, "and on looking around saw Tod Sloan, the American jockey, whom I had seen often riding at Longchamps, dining in solitary splendor at the next table. While waiting for my dinner to be brought I watched the little American and saw him, after tasting some fried potatoes that had been brought to him, summon the waiter angrily and bid him take the dish away. Now I had ordered fried potatoes also, and I had no difficulty in discovering, when mine arrived with suspicious promptness, that the very same dish Tod Sloan had disdained had been brought to me."

"I suppose," said a listener. "Your majesty summoned the restaurant man and had the waiter discharged?"

"Oh, no," replied the king, smiling. "I tasted the potatoes, and I discovered that Mr. Sloan was quite right. They had been cooked with rancid butter and were very bad. But I knew that if I sent them away it would seriously injure the business of the place, so I went on eating them. You see, therefore, that nowadays a jockey can afford to be more particular than a king."

TRUCK COMPANY'S JONAH.
Every Time the Tailor Entered Engine House Fire Alarm Sounded—Now He Stays Away.

If there is one class of public servant more superstitious than another it is the firemen. Once a bluecoat has made up his mind that he is followed by a Jonah there is nothing that will convince him that he is wrong, says the Chicago Record Herald.

The captain of a West side truck company is no exception to the rule, and as a result, lies, the tailor, is exiled from the company's quarters. He is one who likes to spend his idle time around an engine house. When he first opened his little tailor shop near the truck house he dropped in to look over the quarters of the firemen. He volunteered to mend any clothing the men wore while at work on fires, and they accepted.

One night a fireman ripped the sleeve of his coat. The next morning the tailor came in and took the coat to repair. As he went out an alarm of fire came in. The firemen worked for five hours. Late in the afternoon the tailor returned with the repaired coat. While he was telling the firemen how he had fixed it, another alarm of fire struck him.

Every time the tailor came the gong sounded. One afternoon the captain heard one of the men grumbling.

"What is the matter, Mike?" he asked.

"Well, skipper, I may be wrong; but I think that tailor is a hoodoo."

The captain reflected. He began to believe Mike was right. Still he did not like to say anything to the tailor. He was a willing worker in the cause of the firemen. Yet the captain could not get the "hoodoo" idea out of his head. He decided to try it out.

The next four times the tailor came in the door the company was called out. Then the captain decided to act. He called the company together. They agreed with him. The tailor was a hoodoo.

The next time he came the captain started to tell him so. Before he had said ten words the company was called out again. When it got back the tailor was waiting in the door. One of the firemen caught him and pushed him outside.

"You are a prince of a fellow, all right enough; but you are a Jonah. The next time you want anything here tell us about it over the telephone. Every time you stick your nose in that door it means a fire alarm."

He concluded that he was a Jonah. He still continues to repair the firemen's clothes, but he never comes in the house when he delivers them.

COLLEGE LIFE IN SCOTLAND

Universities of Great Britain Are Different from Those in America—Rules Adhered To.

American college boys and high school boys would have found student life at the old Scottish universities very different from the free and easy good time they are used to at their own seat of learning. In the early part of the eighteenth century the students at some of the Scottish universities could not "shoulder or push" each other, could not stand at the gate on the stairs or in the corridors of the college buildings for fear they would dispute with each other, could not play or loiter up and down in any of the courts while the classes were in progress, nor play ball, billiards or bowls. A student—no matter how old he was—even after he had become a young man—was whipped for getting into a fight or hitting another student. He was fued for speaking coarsely or wickedly. He could not throw snowballs at anything or anybody, and during hours in the college building he could not speak a word in anything but Latin.

At Edinburgh the students wore scarlet gowns during classes. They lived in the town. There were no dormitories and they knew very little about each other in many cases. There were, and are to-day at Edinburgh no college sports as we know them, and little general college life.

YOUNG'S LUCKY STAR.
Commanding Officer of Ill-Fated Bangor Was on Shore When Explosion Occurred.

"Lucien Young was certainly born under a lucky star," said a lifelong friend, Col. Sam Donelson, at the Shoreham, alluding to the commanding officer of the ill-fated Bangor, and to his remarkable escape from injury by reason of his accidental absence at the time of the explosion, relates the Washington Star.

"Capt. Young used to be one of the most popular of all that brilliant galaxy who made Chamberlain's headquarters," continued Col. Donelson, "and many were the good stories of which he was the hero. There are old timers who still laugh over an affair in which he and John Chamberlain were the chief actors. They were bosom friends, and one day while laughing together, the subject of local equestrian stunts coming up, they mutually agreed that the bronze representation of Gen. Thomas on horseback was the finest work of art of its kind in Washington."

"A few days afterward, singularly enough, it happened that Young and the late Senator Beck, of Kentucky, got to discussing the self-same topic in one of the cozy corners of Chamberlain's. Young repeated his opinion that the Thomas statue was preeminently above the rest, an opinion which the senator vigorously combated, arguing that it was not nearly so meritorious as the statue of McPherson, near by. The contention waxed warm, and finally Young, with crafty design, said he'd be willing to leave it to John Chamberlain to decide, the loser to stand a champagne supper for three. The challenge was promptly accepted by Beck, and Chamberlain was called over and asked to umpire the case. Without a second's hesitation he decided in favor of the senator, to the utter surprise and chagrin of the naval officer."

"As Chamberlain backed away Lucien followed him, as soon as he could make an excuse, and getting into a quiet corner, began to call him objectionable names, to which epithets the prince of entertainers listened, meekly. 'John Chamberlain,' thundered the angry lieutenant, 'did you not less than a week ago agree with me that the Thomas statue was the handsomest in this town?'"

"I certainly did say that," quoth John, "and what's more, I am of the same opinion still."

"Then, why in the name of heaven did you not say so just now?"

"Well, Lucien, you and I are both men of the world, and I appeal to you as such if I could give a decision in favor of a lieutenant in the navy against a United States senator!"

PREVENTING SEA-SICKNESS.

Self-Leveling Bunk Is Latest Device for Aiding Travelers in Overcoming Illness on Water.

An ingenious self-leveling sea bunk for vessels, the object of which is to overcome the discomfort to the passenger of mal-de-mer, has been devised by a London dentist. It has now been in successful operation upon one of the mail boats plying across the English channel. The device comprises a swinging cot with four cords passing from the corners to the electric brakes, which automatically check any attempt of the cot to depart from its position. While the cot remains level, the cords are free to pass on and off the pulleys on the brakes. The slightest loss of horizontality of the cot causes mercury in four tubes to fall in some of them and rise in others, and so complete the electric current to the particular brake required to be put in operation to check the further loss of horizontality. The loss of level from the variation of the position taken by the passenger is automatically compensated; water being practically the same specific gravity as the human body, a heavy man will press more water to the foot of a specially designed water bed than a light weight, as also from side to side.

GIRLS INVADE POOL GAME.

Pair Sex Expands Knowledge of Sports to This Branch of Squares Great Nervousness.

London.—The latest in such of athletic sports, invasion of the pool table by girls, has proved its ability in many branches of sport, and now it comes in the form of pool. There are few girls in the game, but they are not so few as they used to be. A girl who has already proved herself equal to the boys in the game, is now being seen in the pool hall.

The first of these girls, who is now being seen in the pool hall, is a girl named "The Queen," who is the daughter of a wealthy family. She is a very good player, and has won many prizes in the game.

According to reports of the game the women started in rather cautiously, but once in action they lost sight of all dangers and played with surprising dash. These were many attempts, so great was the desire to get a whack at the ball, but the game ended with out any of the members being hurt.

The game of pool is a very old one, and is followed by other sports of the same kind, especially in view of the fact that the game is very popular in the eyes of the girls and the boys.

WOMAN KILLS BIG GAME.

Lion, Lynx and Two Wild Cats One Night's Sport in the San Bernardino Mountains.

San Bernardino, Cal.—A big lion, a lion and two wild cats are the trophies which Mrs. A. H. Wright of this city displays as the result of one night's hunt for big game.

Mrs. Wright, with her husband and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Wallace, has been camping at Table Mountain, in an unincorporated section of the San Bernardino range. While the women were absent on a fishing trip, Mrs. Wright decided that she would take a shot at some of the big game.

She took up a position at sundown in the branches of a tree some yards from the camp, her position commanding a view of the entire range.

GIRL WALKS AFTER YEARS.

Recovery Is Attributed to Prayers of Friends—Case Pronounced Hopeless.

York, Pa.—Ethel Vandervort, daughter of Edward P. and Mary M. Vandervort, of this city, and for 12 years an invalid, said today that she was able to walk after 12 years of being bed-ridden. She had been in bed for 12 years, and was now able to walk.

She had been in bed for 12 years, and was now able to walk. She had been in bed for 12 years, and was now able to walk. She had been in bed for 12 years, and was now able to walk.

WOMEN HAVE NEW FIELD.

Makes Valuable Assistants in Engineering and Architectural Drafting Rooms.

It is rather remarkable that the female draughting-room assistant has not been realized sooner, as this is a class of work for which women are temperamentally fitted. The presumption is that the usual lack of mechanical construction, which is a necessary part of the draughting profession, is a disadvantage to women.

It may be recalled, however, that in the case of the female draughting-room assistant, the work is not so much a matter of mechanical construction as it is a matter of artistic design. The female draughting-room assistant is a valuable asset to the draughting profession.

Even in the field of the engineering department they are now making an impression. The female draughting-room assistant is a valuable asset to the draughting profession.

CHARACTER IN BUILDINGS.

Good and Bad Qualities of a People Are Reflected in Their Houses.

Every race and every age unconsciously write their character in the buildings which they erect, in the kind of materials they use, in the kind of streets on which they place them, writes Lucia Ames Mead, in "A Little Talk About Architecture."

The man with the Panama couldn't help showing that he was proud of his home. The walking stick in the pocket of a man in the crowd asked him to relate the New York Press.

"That's a snake," he said, "and I'm in the language of the newest fad. Wasn't it Aaron who changed sticks into snakes in the old Bible days? Well, that's the idea of the new countrymen in the Adirondacks who are reversing the proposition—changing snakes into sticks."

CHEMIST'S NEW DISCOVERY.

Compound That Doubles the Density of Stone and Preserves Metals.

It is reported that the Hungarian chemist, Hargitay, has discovered a liquid chemical compound which makes certain kinds of matter proof against the effects of time. This wonderful agent doubles the density of nearly every kind of stone and renders it waterproof. It is also a preservative for metals.

It is said that the learned scientist has made tests of this strange substance, and the results have been most satisfactory. The compound is a liquid, and is used in the form of a solution.

Not the least interesting fact in connection with this discovery is the statement by the professor that years ago while traveling in Greece, he observed that the mortar in stones of ruins that were over 2,000 years old was as hard and fresh and as strong as if it had been laid a year. Taking a piece of this mortar, he has worked on it for more than a year, and says until he has discovered the secret.

SECT SHOWS NEW ENERGY.

Pennsylvania Schweinfelders Have Been Expected to Remarkable Activity.

After seeming to make little progress for a century and a half, the list of the Schweinfelders, existing nowhere except in southeastern Pennsylvania, has within the last few years been rounded into remarkable activity. With a total membership of less than 1,000 persons, they have contributed more than $100,000 for the work of the denomination and writings of their founder, Casper W. Schweinfeld. They have sent a missionary to China, and have organized churches in Philadelphia and Norristown. In addition to the six churches in rural districts of Montgomery, Berks and Lehigh counties, they have existed almost as long as the Schweinfelders have been in America.

In connection with the organization of their newest congregation, that in Norristown, there is a manifestation of the latter-day tendency toward harmony among sects that once were prone to lay great stress on their points of variance. When Luther and Schweinfeld disagreed at the time of the reformation, Luther vented his anger in a letter to the pope in a letter, in which he declared: "In short, either you or I are the householder of Satan."

Now, however, Norristown Schweinfelders and the members of Grace Lutheran congregation hold services in the same church. The Schweinfelders fought the property from the Lutherans recently with the understanding that both congregations shall have the use of the home of worship. Moreover, when the Schweinfelders held their first service in the church the pastor of the Lutheran congregation presided at the altar, and the expressions of fraternal greetings on behalf of his people.

CAN DETECT HUMAN BLOOD.

New Method of Distinguishing It from That of Animals Is Discovers.

Count General Quencher of Frankfurt reports that the Prussian military surgeon, Dr. Ullenhuth, who has been transferred to the hygienic institute of the University of Göttingen, has discovered a new method for distinguishing human from animal blood. In 1897 Dr. Ullenhuth was assistant at the institute for infectious diseases at Berlin, and is a member of the commission for investigating the foot-and-mouth disease.

In the fall of 1909 Dr. Ullenhuth published important investigations with reference to distinguishing between the albumen of eggs of various birds on the basis of modern science, which is mainly the result of the researches of Borde of France and Ehrlich of Frankfurt. Ullenhuth found that the albumen can be differentiated biologically.

His researches resulted in the important discovery of a new forensic method, was soon confirmed on all blood so that it is now possible to tell with absolute certainty the origin of the blood. COVERED WITH SNAKE SKIN.

Walking Sticks Increased in Circulation of Reptiles at Present an Adirondack Fact.

The man with the Panama couldn't help showing that he was proud of his home. The walking stick in the pocket of a man in the crowd asked him to relate the New York Press.

"That's a snake," he said, "and I'm in the language of the newest fad. Wasn't it Aaron who changed sticks into snakes in the old Bible days? Well, that's the idea of the new countrymen in the Adirondacks who are reversing the proposition—changing snakes into sticks."

The natives kill the snakes and the large snakes of that region—ones with stripes and vivid coloring. If possible—and it is the rule in the Adirondacks—the snake is then soaked in a strong solution of alum, which shrinks the skin perfectly around the stick. An artificial snake's head for a handle completes the outfit.

Tired Nervous

When you feel languid, tired, nervous and irritable, your vitality is low—your supply of nerve energy exhausted, and your system running down for lack of power.

The organs of the body are working poorly, or not at all, and you are not getting the nourishment needed. This soon impoverishes the blood and instead of throwing off the impurities, distributes it all through the body. This brings disease and misery.

Feed the nerves with Dr. Miles' Nerve, a nerve food, a nerve medicine, that nourishes and strengthens the nerves, and see how quickly you will get strong and vigorous.

My wife suffered with nervousness previous to a recent attack of typhoid fever, which was very severe, and could not be relieved. It is a relief to find that she is now strong and vigorous. After the first attack of typhoid fever, she was very weak, and at the end of the first week of convalescence, she was very weak. Continued use of Nerve has completely restored her.

121 Cherry Street, New York, N. Y. Dr. Miles' Nerve is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will give you relief. Write for free literature. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Aluminum Paper.

Aluminum coated paper for wrapping food substances is prepared in Germany by applying a thin coat of an aqueous solution of alumina to an artificial parchment, then sprinkling powder over the surface, and finally submitting to pressure. It is claimed for the paper that it is not attacked by the air or by fats, is much cheaper than tin foil, and is not poisonous.

LIVES ON $10 A YEAR.

WISCONSIN MAN BUYS ONLY BARE NECESSITIES.

He Flashes During Summer and Lays Up Great Stores for Winter—Coordinates Small Farm—Saves Service in Civil War.

Elton, Wis.—Near Mirror Lake, Sauk county, is a rich grain in which men have lived for years on $10 a year. George Skinner is his name and he seems perfectly content.

The old man is a civil war veteran. When he was discharged at the end of the war he had money enough to purchase an acre of ground on the shores of picturesque Mirror lake. In this acre of ground he planted vegetables and fruit trees. Close to the shore he grew a big cluster of blackberry bushes, and in the garden behind it there are long rows of strawberries. Over the fence that separates the garden from the road are two trees. Here the veteran makes his home.

How does he live? Each day he takes his fishing rod and goes down to Mirror lake. That is his park. The fish that he draws out of those waters supply his dinner, likewise his breakfast.

The vegetables and meat made from corn grown in his garden complete his food. For his lake fishing Skinner has built himself a boat which is as unique as his life. In the winter he may lose and propel his boat at the same time he has invented an extraordinary contrivance.

At the stern of his boat he has a paddle like that of a river steamer. This is turned by means of a chain running in grooves and attached to a crank that the old man turns with one hand as he trolls with the other. From this strange craft, nicknamed "the flying machine," by the people of Elton, Skinner does his trolling.

Skinner lives during the winter as well as he does in summer. From the over-abundance of one season he saves enough to meet the necessities of the other. During the summer days he fishes continuously. He catches on an average 100 fish a day, mostly small ones. Ten of those suffice for his two simple meals.

The other 90 are carefully cleaned and stored away in great barrels of brine kept in the cellar of his cabin. When he has enough barrels of fish stored away to last him through the winter he stops fishing, as he thinks it is a sin to kill any creature, even a fish, except for food.

The ten dollars which he spends annually for tobacco, fish hooks and clothing.

No need to fear sudden attacks of cholera infanctum, dysentery, diarrhoea, summer complaint of any sort if you have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in the medicine chest. 8 ct.

REVIEWS LOST ART.

POTTERY-MAKING, 2,000 YEARS AGO, BROUGHT TO LIGHT.

Harry Firth, an Englishman, duplicates the Celebrated Blackware of the Etruscan—Hittite on Rhine by Roundabout Route.

London.—Examples of an art lost more than 2,000 centuries and only recovered by accident, have been exhibited recently by Harry Firth, of Kirby Lonsdale, England. The work duplicates the famous blackware of the Etruscans.

Mr. Firth spent the first 40 years of his life tending swine for the count of Kirby Lonsdale. He was a common gardener, caring in the neighborhood of six dollars a week. In 1906 he became interested in the pottery of the Etruscans and the Hittites, and in 1910 he was introduced into Kirby Lonsdale by Mr. Firth, his little daughter, his wife and other members of his family joined the student ranks. He took up wood carving, but he had rather rougher in color, his wife embraced leather, and all three have made a wonderful success.

Mr. Firth speedily found that his designs were difficult of execution, however, as he had no model with which to guide the movements of his chisel. Hence he was quick to avail himself of a suggestion that he model his work in clay, afterward copying the design in wood. For a year or more he laboriously copied the weary miles with his plastic models to a neighboring brick kiln, where they were baked hard. By degrees his interest in clay overhauled his interest in wood, and instead of modeling mere designs for his chisel to copy he tried his penitence hand at original work in pottery. The same ones which had used his wood carving followed him in this, and the same evening which had carried his models seven miles after a hard day's work in the garden carried his pots and his vase over the same tedious road to the brick kiln.

A few months, however, and he saw that he had rather rougher in color, his wife embraced leather, and all three have made a wonderful success.

Temperance Clippings from The Owingsville Outlook.

As the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina, it is a long time between Jan. 1, 1906, and Jan. 1, 1909.

There is nothing to it—you must get on the water wagon. There is always room for one more!

The W. C. T. U. is organizing to vote prohibition in Mt. Sterling. Get on the water wagon.

Every county surrounding Bath, except Montgomery, is under the Prohibition law, and the assault on "Demon Rum" in Mt. Sterling is to be made at once by the women and their allies among the men. The contest is hardly doubtful, for Old Man Prohibition has the right of way over every road short of the larger cities.

ON THE WATER WAGON.—They do say "the boys" are climbing aboard the water wagon in anticipation of the three years' drought after Jan. 1. The usual crowd was not here Saturday afternoon.

THE IDIOT IS ON.—There is no doubt that the idiot is on here of Sundays and Old Man Prohibition sitting on it. It is said that a man walked here last Sunday for some of the old stuff and couldn't even get a smell. Such a state of affairs is calculated to make a body take passage on the water wagon whether or no.

BANK MONEY ORDERS.

We take this opportunity of calling your attention to BANK MONEY ORDERS, a new feature in banking which we are introducing. You will find them convenient for sending small amounts of money to other cities in payment of merchandise, subscriptions to papers, etc. They are absolutely safe and are payable everywhere. Their payment is guaranteed by the American Surety Company, of New York, which has a capital of $4,500,000. We issue a receipt for each order purchased. You do not have to write out an application for them, as you do a Postal Money Order, and you thus saved delay and inconvenience. The cost is less than the money orders, being as follows:

Amounts $5 and under, 2 cents.
Amounts $5 to $10, 5 cents.
Amounts $10 to $25, 10 cts.
Amounts $25 to $50, 15 cts.

Two story dwelling in first-class condition. Office on North Maysville street. Apply to T. F. Rogers.

DEATHS

FIZER.—Mrs. Mary Fizer, widow of Sam Fizer, deceased, and sister-in-law of C. B. Fizer, died at her home on Jamison street last Wednesday of heart trouble. She left two sons, Ed and William, of Knoxville, Tenn. She was a good woman and a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Services at her home Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. H. G. Turner. Burial in Knoxville, Tenn.

HOFFMAN.—Monday, Sept. 25, 1905, Mary Hoffman, infant daughter of H. G. Hoffman and wife, aged 17 months, departed this life. Funeral services will be conducted at the grave today in Macpherson cemetery, by Rev. H. D. Clark. The sympathy of a host of friends is with Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman in their sore bereavement. Over the closed graves of the little ones we pause and wonder why God thus disposes. It cannot be for the purpose of making heart aches, for that is not his pleasure nor is it consistent with the loving sympathetic spirit that He is. His word is sufficient for us just here as also are earth's experiences. He takes them for our good, for their joy. We love the little ones God loves them more and cares for them better. Mary Louise had suffered much but those pains are no more now and her spirit is among the bright ones of Heaven. The little one cannot return to earth but the dear ones by faith can go to her. I know she would meet you joyously where love is more intense, feel that it can be on earth. God bless, comfort and sustain you.

OWINGS.—Her oft expressed desire to depart and be with Christ has been fulfilled. Released from the tabernacle of flesh wherein it dwelt for near 93 years, the spirit of Mrs. Mary Owings on Thursday, Sept. 21, 1935, returned to God who gave it. Her maiden name was Mary Kelo. She was a native of Harrison county, Ky. There she married Rezin Owings of Bath. They came to make their home in Bath nearly 70 years ago. She has been a widow for about 50 years. She leaves four children: Joshua Owings, of this county; Mrs. Blyades, of Hot Springs, Ark.; Thomas Owings and Mrs. Crit Lane, her youngest child, with whom she has lived for many years. She united with the Presbyterian church, and during her married life has been a member of the Springfield congregation. Her life has been full of loving ministry and encouraging words to the sick and distressed. Although she has been in bed for about 18 months and almost blind, she has borne the confinement with remarkable patience and cheerfulness, waiting the summons to the "heavenly home," yet saying God knows best. No worry, no complaint, no murmur marred the composure of her trustful spirit. She thought that all was for her good. A rich compensation has come to her daughter and others who have so lovingly cared for her. The funeral service was held at Springfield on Saturday morning by Rev. E. O. Guerrant, and the body rests beside that of her husband.

The total income of the Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co. in 1904 was $30,711,149; it returned to the policy-holders in dividends $3,840,482, or more than 14 per cent, a record not equaled by any company. See Stanley Arnold, Agt. and have a talk with him.
